Sydney Children's Hospital, Randwick.

photographer israel smith invites you to his first solo exhibition – “a day in the life” – showcasing documentary images captured during a 24-hour period at the sydney children’s hospital, randwick.

israel has created a stirring, emotive portrait of the environment, staff, patients and families within the hospital across a typical 24-hour day.

these honest and sometimes challenging images show the light & shade of the hospital’s humanity. overwhelmingly positive, they tell stories of care, compassion, and the most universal emotion – love.

the exhibition will be opened by peter garrett, federal minister for the environment, heritage and the arts.
